EDMONTON, ALTA., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 6, 1952

NORTHWESTERN UTILITIES have been expanding and consolidating their services with increased well drillings, increased transmission lines and with thousands of new consumers have been busily engaged extending gas service to Albertans. Above is shown a pipe-laying crew at work east of Edmonton. The men here are enamelling, wrapping and laying a 16" transmission line, fully protected against rust or corrosion.

North-Western Utilities Gas Line Construction Program Well Underway

The Gas Company announced that its $3,500,000.00 1952 construction program is proceeding very satisfactory, though some of the work has been delayed due to the wet weather which has prevailed. It is anticipated that it will be completed in plenty of time for the coming winter.

Ball Club Sports Day Success

PLAMONDON—The Plamondon Ball Club sports day held in Plamondon recently was very successful. A good crowd attended and of course the ball games were the highlights of the day.

The Lac la Biche Dodgers and Amber Valley team played a good game, finishing with a score of 4-5 in favor of Lac la Biche.

The second game between Wandering River and Plamondon could be called a 'rule ball game' with Wandering River downing Plamondon by a score of 4-3.

And the final game between Wandering River and Lac la Biche, Wandering River ran away with a score of 12-1, and it was only in the last inning Lac la Biche made their one score.

The day ended with a show and dance.

Eight new wells have been completed in the company's Viking-Kinsella field. The results of these wells have been good and it is expected that they will measure up to what was anticipated of them, though all have not been completely tested as yet. This fall these wells will be connected by some 20 miles of field gathering lines to the company's main field line system, bringing the field line mileage up to a total of 161 miles. This year's field line program cannot be commenced until the fall, due to the late arrival of pipe which is on order from the United Kingdom. In addition to the eight wells which the company has drilled, a well formerly drilled by Imperial Oil Limited is also being connected to the field system.

In addition to the wells drilled at Viking-Kinsella and in accordance with the policy of developing additional gas reserves for its system, the company last fall and this spring made an arrangement to develop an area it acquired from Imperial Oil Limited in the Legal district north of Edmonton. Eight wells were drilled with somewhat spotty results. Four were completed in the Viking formation and one in the Basal Lower Cretaceous. Three wells were non-productive and were abandoned. The completed wells indicate that this area will be a possible source of peak load gas for the company's system but no plans have been made to connect this field this year to the company's main transmission pipe line system.

In the Viking-Kinsella field the company is enlarging its office building, and is building a house for its field superintendent, Mr. Roland Brooke. In addition, this year a new permanent camp will be built at the south-easterly end of the Kinsella field on the northern limits of the Village of Irma. This camp will consist of a foreman's house, a building comprising a garage, work shop, and office, and a small staff houses for single male employees. The south-easterly

Wheat Marketing Proposal

In an article in the Winnipeg Free Press, Senator T. A. Crerar outlines his views regarding a future policy for wheat marketing in Canada. He suggests that the idea of an international wheat agreement should be abandoned, that the grain exchange should be allowed to operate once again, and that Wheat Pools and the United Grain Growers should join hands in the formation of a powerful export marketing organization.

Senator Crerar says that the experience of the British wheat agreement and the International Wheat Agreement resulted in very large financial losses to the wheat producers of western Canada. He has no faith in the International Wheat Agreement providing stability of prices for Canadian grain producers. Importing nations, he maintains, will not commit themselves to buy under agreements unless they can buy cheaper than what they estimate the world price will likely be.

The three western Wheat Pools and the United Grain Growers control among them more than two-fifths of the country and terminal elevator capacity, the Senator states. Among them they handle probably 45 per cent of all grain marketed in western Canada. This gives them enormous power which, wisely used, could benefit the farmers they serve. The Senator says they could form a powerful export marketing organization which could search for markets where Canadian wheat and flour could be sold.

Regarding the grain exchange, Senator Crerar states that nothing can take the place of the open competitive market in giving service to the farmers by insuring that their grain is handled to its ultimate consumer at the lowest possible ratio of expense.

There probably are some arguments for floor price, the Senator states, but he concludes, "If the western Canadian farmer thinks for a moment that he can compel parliament to subsidize him in some form or other, he is indeed very much mistaken. For anything of this kind could only be done by taking the money out of the pockets of the taxpayers, and the people of the rest of Canada, where the political power lies, will not tax themselves to meet the wishes of the western grain growers."

Too Many Girls

A Canadian insurance company has recently released figures showing that the trend in Canada is toward a larger proportion of women than men. Already, there are more women in the older age groups than there are men.

Although more boys are born each year than girls, the male fatality rate is greater and, in addition to this factor, recent immigration has brought more females than males to our shores. Earlier in the century, immigration figures show that more males immigrated to Canada than females.

According to the experts, the trend will continue until women considerably outnumber men in the middle and younger age group. In China, there is little danger of this dilemma since the practice of infanticide is still in vogue, according to reports from Hong Kong.

According to the South China Daily, the official party newspaper in Canton, the drowning of girl infants has proved serious in both land reform areas as well as in other areas. This practice has long been followed in China among poor families, who look upon girl infants as economic liabilities. The South China Daily reported that statistics showed 1,882 cases of infanticide had occurred in four counties in east Kwangtung alone.

The United Nations might be more effective if it stressed such barbaric practices in showing the world just how uncivilized the humanity of China actually is.

What shall we then say to these things? If God be for us, who can be against us? — Romans, VIII; 31.

U.S. Election Gains Momentum

With the recent announcement that Adlai Stevenson has been chosen as the Democratic candidate for the United States Presidency, the United States election campaign swings into high gear. Whereas the Republican Nomination Convention in Chicago was marked by a rift in the party between the pro-Taft and pro-Eisenhower camps, the Democratic convention proved a less spectacular see-saw battle between the leading nominees. For a time it looked like a race between Richard Russell and Estes Kefauver, but a dark horse appeared in the person of Adlai Stevenson, Governor of Illinois. Stevenson, who had insisted he would not stand for nomination, finally consented and the third count ballots gave him a lead over his closest rivals, Kefauver and Russell. The latter then switched their votes to Stevenson and the nomination was his.

In pinning their hopes on Stevenson the Democrats appeared to have selected a candidate who would have more chance with both the South and New York and California. By sticking 100% to their new deal policy as advocated by Candidate Averell Harriman and Labor Leader Walter Reuther, they would lessen their chance for strong support from the Southern States. On the other hand the policy of holding the South at all costs, as exemplified by candidate Richard Russell, would seriously weaken their strength in the Northern and Western States. A middle of the road policy appealing to both North and South appears to be the tact that Stevenson will take. Most Democrats agree that he was the logical one to hold the solid South and carry New York and California, and he should be assured of support in his home States of Illinois and Michigan.

Now with the opposing Generals named, it looks as if the United States is in for a hotly contested election fight, and after the Truman upset four years ago, who is going to call the favorites this time?

Wanted—Old License Plates For New

Ever since the war and the relaxing of steel restrictions, there has been a hue and cry for a new and distinctive license plate for Alberta. Various travel and motor associations pointed to the need and the advantages to be gained by adopting a license plate with a slogan or design which would "sell" Alberta. Promises were made, contests were held, motorists waited, and at last the news came—the 1952 license plate was to be of new design, the letters were to be of a type which would reflect on-coming lights, and these new plates would be retained for two or three years.

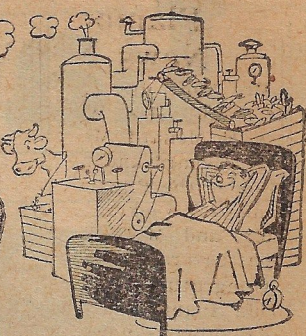

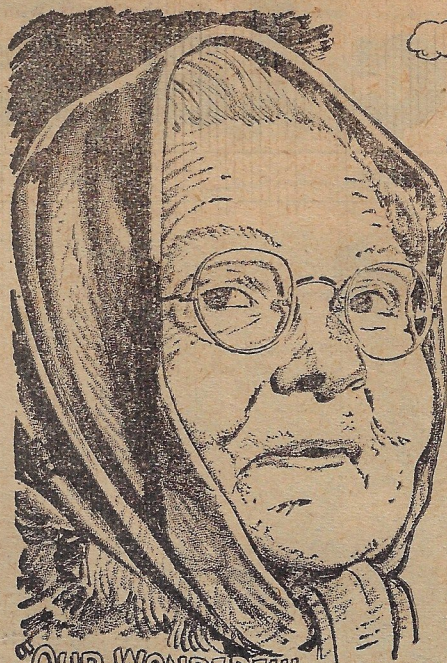

But alas, after five years to study and adopt a permanent plate that would be suitable and acceptable to everyone, the department concerned picked one that could hardly have met with more disfavor from motorists. The colors adopted, black and white, are not eye-appealing nor particularly legible. The reflecting surface on the numerals, not only doesn't reflect but it serves the useless purpose of collecting dirt that is almost impossible to wash off. This gives the plates a dirty appearance and makes them more difficult than ever to read.

Other motorists found dissatisfaction in the new shape of the '52 plates. Most of these car owners had purchased or secured from their dealer a metal license plate frame suitable in size for last year's plates but too narrow for the '52 model.

Still further criticism has been rained upon the responsible department because in their apparent effort to make the numbers and letters on the plates large and easily read they are in effect very difficult to read because they are spaced too closely together and the width of the letters is not in proper proportion to their size.

It is presumed that the fancier, permanent type 1952 plates cost the Government more than their old-fashion brother, but as far as Mr. Motorist is concerned he would gladly trade old plates for new.

Voice of the People

S.C. NOT THIRD PARTY?

Why is it the editor of a paper thinks he knows more than the voting public? What makes an editor dedicate long columns of his front page and editorial page to cheap, petty, and indirect advertisement for equally unimportant outcast political parties? My answer is, "I don't know, some people do absurd things." But here are two examples and a note on each — both examples taken from the July 10 edition of the Edmonton Sun:

In an editorial entitled "Can a Third Party Win?" the Social Credit Party is condemned as a third party which is slowly but chronically destroying itself by interior movements. Where in this world can the editor of the Sun build up enough nerve to make such a fatuous insinuation? When Social Credit was introduced to Alberta the people willingly invoked Social Credit to lead and guide them. So far the people have been guided and will be so under Social Credit. This has been shot in the arm by the stupendous increase in popularity of Social Credit in British Columbia. Knowing the present government of Alberta is the first party of Alberta, the editor insists on calling it a third party. What can he call the first and second parties?

In a front page story Social Credit is openly condemned by the editor and Liberalism is likewise praised. What good account can be given for the Liberal defeat in Alberta, and recently in Federal by-elections in eastern Canada? Also complete attention must be given to the recent rejection and crushing defeat of Liberalism in British Columbia.

I believe it is high time the editor learns to realize old-fashioned parties with their old-fashioned ideas of government are a liability rather than an asset to a modern country such as Canada. The great majority of the Alberta and British Columbia voters have acknowledged this distinction. Saskatchewan voters have also done away with old parties.

THE BIBLE AND WESLEY

In answer to your write-up of June 6, "The Church and the Gospel," asking if there is a John Wesley in Alberta.

What about C. Hutchinson, who comes over the air at 7:30 over CFAC, Calgary, every Sunday morning, and at 5 to 6 o'clock in evening over CKXL Calgary? And what about Premier Manning, who comes over the air at 10 o'clock over CFCW every Sunday morning and again at 2:30 in afternoon church?

Where else will you find men who are as efficient in their bibles as these two men? Mr. Manning claims a half-million listen to his broadcasts, and these broadcasts come over Victoria, Vernon, Vancouver, B.C., Grande Prairie, Edmonton, Calgary, Alberta, Regina, Saskatoon, Saskatchewan; Winnipeg, Man.; Ottawa, Hamilton, Barrie, Sarnia in Ontario; Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Mr. Hutchinson has broadcasts from CFAC Calgary; Havre, Montana, U.S.A.; Vancouver, B.C.; CKXL Calgary, and these men teach the Bible as it should be taught, and so plain the youngest child could understand, and any questions sent in will be answered and explained over the air.

The broadcasts over CFCN from the Bible Institute, 516 Eighth Ave. West, Calgary, have been coming ever since away back around 1925, I believe.

Since Mr. Hutchinson started up for himself he has had his broadcasts over CFAC 7:30 every Sunday morning, and over CKXL at 5 in evening.

There is no excuse for people not knowing their Bibles if they want to listen. Send in your questions on the Bible to either of these men and they will give you your answer right from the Bible and tell you where to find it, book, chapter and verse, over the air.

ly section of the field will be operated and maintained from this camp, as well the transmission line to the army camp at Wainwright, also the distribution systems and customer service for the communities in this area. This will make the third permanent camp in the 470 square mile Viking-Kinsella field, the other two being located just north of Viking and of Kinsella.

Towards the latter part of May, work was commenced on 26½ miles of 16" transmission line between the Viking field station and Edmonton. Twenty miles of this have been completed, in addition to 35 miles laid last year. The remaining 6½ miles, it is anticipated, will be added this fall. This will bring the 4th main transmission pipe line from Viking to a point within some 17 miles east of the city limits where it will be tied into the existing three lines, and will greatly increase the company's deliverability capacity for the coming winter. When this year's program is complete the company will have in operation 483 miles of transmission line.

Work is proceeding on doubling the capacity of the natural gas processing plant immediately east of the city. The increase in the size of this plant became necessary in order that the company could handle the increased quantities of gas which will be available and which it will purchase from the Imperial Oil Limited gas conservation plan at Devon.

Extensions are being made to the transmission system in the Edmonton area for the purpose of serving two large industries namely, the Polythene plant of Canadian Industries Limited now being built east of the city and the Acme Brick Company's plant near the Town of St. Albert.

Some major improvements are underway in the Edmonton distribution system at the present time. A new 16" line is being laid on 106 Ave between 113 St. and 123½ St. replacing a 6" main which was installed in 1924. The purpose of this is to provide additional capacity to the western and northwestern districts of the city. Shortly, work will commence on a new 16" main to serve the Ritchie District, the industrial area along the Calgary Highway and the Parkallen Subdivision. Many other improvements to the distribution system are planned for the balance of the summer and the early fall.

Service is being extended as rapidly as possible to all new residential and industrial areas in and adjoining the City of Edmonton. The company expects to add approximately 3,000 new customers to its system this year, which will bring the total number it will serve by the end of 1952 to something in the neighborhood of 49,500.

FIRST CFRN SCHOLARSHIP WINNER ATTENDS BANFF SCHOOL OF FINE ARTS

The first winner of the new CFRN Banff School of Fine Arts Scholarship, Edward Klovansky, is at present attending the summer course in dramatics, at Banff.

The scholarship of $200.00 was offered for the first time this year in conjunction with the A.C.T. - CFRN "Search For Talent Series." This series of amateur shows is run in 25 rural communities in northern Alberta each fall and winter. Winners from the local shows are brought into Edmonton for the Semi Final Show at the end of the season. At this time, both talent and popularity winners are chosen. A special board of adjudicators chose Edward for his potential talent in elocution.

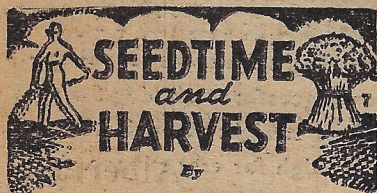

At the Semi Final show Edward told the story of "Little Red Riding Hood" as it could be told by a parent trying to get the children off to bed in a hurry. For his guest appearance on the Final Show, he chose a "Victor Borga" interpretation of phonetic punctuation.

Edward's course in Dramatics continues from July 7th to August 16th. A Grade XI student, Edward is 15 years of age, and comes from the rural farming community of Fallis, about 50 miles west of Edmonton.

Mr. G. R. A. Rice, president and manager of the Sunwapta Broadcasting Company Limited, and radio station CFRN, presented Edward with his scholarship at the Semi Final "Search For Talent Show", held in Edmonton on May 3rd.

Plant Doctors and Plant Diseases

No group of scientists have contributed more toward the welfare of agriculture in Western Canada than our plant doctors or plant pathologists. They are our G-Men in plant disease control.

Diseases are Important. The rusts, smuts, rots, blights and wilts have destroyed plants ever since man began to cultivate crops. Down the ages they have brought famine, hunger and misery with them. Plant diseases to a large extent stamp the pattern of agriculture upon a country. In Western Canada, the control of plant diseases is no less important than the preservation of our prairie soils.

A Free Service. For over 40 years, the Canada Department of Agriculture has provided farmers with a free, medical service for crop plants. Unfortunately, not enough farmers use it. Not only should more prairie farmers know that this service is available to them, free of charge; but they should also realize that they themselves can make a valuable contribution towards maintaining the health of Canada's field crops by reporting immediately all cases of unknown plant disease, and by applying control methods which are known to be effective.

Disease Identification. Any farmer who finds suspicious-looking, diseased plants in his grain fields, should send specimens of them—dried, and wrapped in several layers of newspaper—to his nearest Dominion Laboratory of Plant Pathology (Winnipeg, Saskatoon, or Edmonton), or to Line Elevators Farm Service, Winnipeg. He will then be told what the disease is, and what measures are necessary to control it.

Weeds Identified Too. The Line Elevators Farm Service also provides a weed identification service for farmers. Take a specimen of the weed you want identified to the local agent of any of the Companies listed above, and he will forward it to us. We will identify the weed and send you up-to-date information on its control. Protect your crops. Be sure you can identify every plant disease and weed on your own farm.

It would take a prodigal son, indeed, to expect a fatted calf these days.—Jackson Sun.

Alberta Army Family Keep Tank In Family

The Camponi family of Calgary, Alberta, figure they own one of the Sherman tanks used by Lord Strathcona's Horse, RCAC, to pound enemy positions in Korea.

Crew commander of a tank named "Calvados" at the time "C" Squadron of the regiment was relieved by "B" Squadron was Cpl. L. J. (Len) Camponi, 23.

His replacement and new crew commander for a second year of duty in the Far East is Cpl. R. J. (Ron) Camponi, a 25-year-old brother.

Another brother, Tpr. Tony Camponi, 21, also has just arrived in Korea with "B" Squadron. A tank driver by trade, he had hoped to drive his brother's tank, "Calvados", but in the Strathcona's brothers are never assigned to the same tank.

The three brothers, separated for nearly one and one-half years—"C" Squadron has been in Korea for 14 months—were reunited a few days ago in a bunker (dug-out) high atop a fortress hill overlooking enemy-held territory.

"Calvados" will be home to Cpl. Ron Camponi for the next year. His brother, Tony, will take over as driver of a tank on a nearby hill while the third member of the trio in Korea, Cpl. Len Camponi, is heading for home and a well-deserved rest

1952 Bible Camp

LAC LA BICHE — The Bible Camp sponsored by the Canadian Sunday School Mission, was held at Little Egg Lake during the third week of July.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherstan, Mr. and Mrs. Mumford, a nurse, and missionaries took responsibility of directing the camp.

The children enjoyed good music, good meals from the kitchen and recreation such as volley ball, softball, swimming, etc. Bible classes were held followed by a morning service.

After each meal the children had to wash their own dishes as well as other jobs, such as washing pots and carrying water.

After supper an evening service was held which was attended by the campers and surrounding friends from various points.

On Sunday there was a good attendance when people from various districts gathered to attend the services. As a result of this camp a few campers came to know Jesus as their own Personal Saviour. A greater number of people are expected at the next Bible Camp, to be held in 1953.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY SPONSORS STOCK SHOW

ATHABASCA — The annual livestock show will be held at Athabasca on Thursday, Aug. 7 in the skating rink. A lengthy list of classes with a sizable prize list will be distributed to $2,000 to the winning entries.

It is hoped that the show this year will be bigger and better than the last when an outstanding array of stock was shown.

Judges from the Department of Agriculture at Edmonton will be present to place the top animals in each class. Every person in the area should make an effort to attend and support this important event in the farming district.

Every year seems to produce a larger number of pretty young things.
